

SEATTLE
SHAKESPEARE

2019–2020 SEASON

The Tempest

By William Shakespeare / Directed by Annie Lareau

Oct 15–Nov 10, 2019

We've Got Magic to Do. Stripped of power, position, and wealth, for 12 long years Prospero has plotted in exile on an enchanted island, waiting to exact revenge. When enemies sail too close, Prospero conjures a magical storm to shipwreck the passengers. The mysterious island holds secrets, along with curious creatures, and fantastical spirits. While dispensing justice and watching over his daughter's emerging romance, Prospero's old wounds begin to heal, and reconciliation and forgiveness now seem within reach for all.

Troilus & Cressida

By William Shakespeare / Directed by John Langs

Mar 17–Apr 12, 2020

Modern Epic. It all began when Helen of Troy was fiercely abducted, and now for seven long years the Greeks and Trojans have been at war. Warriors cynically debate over the fate of their nations with little resolve. Ensnared in the madness are the young Greek prince, Troilus, and a Trojan traitor's daughter, Cressida. Their love is tested and exposed to the savage and corrupting influence of wartime politics.

The Rivals

By Richard Brinsley Sheridan / Directed by George Mount

Jan 7–Feb 2, 2020

All You Need is Love. Romance novels have given young (and wealthy!) Lydia Languish some ridiculous notions, and she insists on marrying a poor man for the sake of true love. Hoping to woo the young woman, Captain Jack Absolute pretends to be a poor naval officer. Aiding and thwarting Jack's pursuit are a collection of comic characters including his crusty and cranky father Sir Anthony, Lydia's meddling and misspoken aunt Mrs. Malaprop, and a pair of adversaries: the jovial Bob Acres and the salty Sir Lucius O'Trigger. Will romance spark in the midst of hilarious circumstances and mistaken identities?

Macbeth

By William Shakespeare / Directed by Desdemona Chiang

Apr 21–May 17, 2020

Something Wicked This Way Comes . . . The world is torn apart by war, and a military leader's rapid rise to power is foretold by a trio of witches. Conspiring with his ambitious wife, they begin a seemingly endless chain of grisly murders to further their own ambitions. But guilt and suspicion plunge their lives into madness, driving the pair down a path of destruction that ultimately leads to a ruin of their own making.

4-Play season ticket packages start at $88
